FAMILY AND CONSUMER SCIENCES, CONCENTRATION—FOODS AND NUTRITION, DIETETICS ACADEMIC MAP: DEGREE BS (120 CREDIT HOURS)

This degree map is a semester-by-semester course schedule for students majoring in Family and Consumer Sciences with a concentration in Food and Nutrition, Dietetics. The milestones listed to the right of each semester are designed to keep students on track to graduate in four years. The schedule serves as a general guideline to help build a full schedule each semester. Milestones are courses and special requirements necessary for timely progress to complete a major. When one or more milestones are missed, students should consult with an academic advisor to determine if another degree path would be more suitable.

At Tennessee State University (TSU), the foods and nutrition programs prepare students for careers as nutrition educators and credentialed dietitians who provide leadership in the delivery of food service management and nutrition services for the citizens of Tennessee and around the globe. With a strong emphasis in community service, students excel in providing services to the limited resource individual and family. Graduates may develop community programs to promote nutrition and good health; appear in media to educate people about the relationship between diet and health; conduct research on the psychological, cultural, social, economic and environmental issues related to nutrition and health; or work with special groups who are at risk for nutrition-related or health problems, such as pregnant women, infants and the elderly. Many opportunities are provided for students to gain experience in the profession before graduation. These experiences enable students to learn about cultures, and take on leadership roles before entering the workforce. These experiences enhance learning and may provide advantages in the job market.

The Didactic Program in Dietetics (DPD) at TSU provides the necessary coursework to meet the academic requirements of the Accreditation Council for Education in Nutrition and Dietetics (ACEND), Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics. Prospective students must meet program admission requirements and make application to the program. Admission criteria and application are linked to this document. Upon admission, all students are required to complete the coursework outlined on the curriculum map. When the majority of coursework has been completed with a minimum of a 2.75 GPA, the student is eligible to apply for a post-baccalaureate supervised practice experience, i.e. a dietetic internship or ISPP. Before entering an internship, students must receive a Verification Statement Form from the DPD Director. Criteria to receive the form include: (a) Completion of all required courses, (b) a Minimum 2.75 GPA, and (c) Passage (75% or greater) of the comprehensive DPD examination. When the internship is successfully completed, the graduate is then qualified to sit for the National Registration Examination for Dietitians of the Commission on Dietetic Registration. They are then allowed to use the designation of Registered Dietitian (RD) after the name.

Tennessee State University recognizes that students have diverse learning, life, and professional experiences. The University provides opportunities for students to earn college credit toward the degree through a number of assessment options that evaluate their learning experiences. These paths are grouped under the category "Prior Learning Assessment" (PLA). Various means of earning PLA credit at TSU are the following: Advance Placement Program, American Council of Education (ACE) Military Credit, American Council on Education (ACE) other Assessed Credit, College Level Exam Program (CLEP), DSST Credit by Examination Program (includes DANTES Examination), Institutional Course Challenge Exams (Departmental Exams), International Baccalaureate Credit, Other Military Service, Portfolio Assessment. To learn more about PLA contact your academic advisor or the Office of Student Support Services for Adult and Distance Learners (615) 963-7001.

Employment Information:

Nutrition professionals translate the science of food and nutrition in order to enhance the well-being of individuals and groups. Many of them work in healthcare facilities such as hospitals and extended care facilities. They may also be found working in community health settings such as Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) programs; food stamp programs; or feeding programs for the elderly. Because so many people eat meals away from home, nutrition professionals and dietitians may also manage non-commercial and commercial foodservice operations where they apply nutrition knowledge and managerial skills in the delivery of meals to children and adults. Career opportunities also exist in diverse areas such as journalism; sports medicine; wellness programs for business and industry; and sales for food, foodservice equipment, or pharmaceutical companies. Nutritionists and dietitians work for food companies in research and development, as public information specialists for food commodity groups or as consultants in private practice serving rural hospitals and nursing homes.

Representative Job Titles Related to this Major: Dietitian, Nutritionist, Dietetic Technician, Nutrition Educator

Representative Employers:

Hospitals, clinics, senior assisted living facilities, governmental food programs, cooperative extension service, non-profits, health and wellness centers, insurance health and wellness coaching programs, company-based health and wellness programs, health and wellness programs in schools, department of education, department of human services, child care programs, United States Department of Agriculture and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

International study is available for all TSU students and may include opportunities for internships or taking course work towards various minors. International study may have an impact on the MAP; therefore, it is important to consult with the academic advisor for this major before participating in an international Program opportunity. Students interested in study abroad opportunities should contact the Office of International Programs and consult with their academic advisor.

This map is not intended to be a contract; either expressed or implied, between the University and the students, but represents a flexible program of the current curriculum which may be altered from time to time to carry out the academic objectives of the University. TSU specifically reserves the right to change, delete or add to any MAP at any time within the student's period of study at the University.
