The University

Located on two campus sites, one at 3500 John Ayers Merritt Blvd. in North Nashville and the other housed in a large modern building located at Tenth and Charlotte avenues downtown, stands an institution of greater learning, Tennessee State University.

As a fully accredited land-grant university, TSU strives to continuously exemplify its motto of "Think, Work, Serve." The university has as its mandates instruction, research and service and is determined to continue its major commitment of producing highly qualified men and women to be successful in all walks of life.

The university aims to; (1) maintain high standards of instruction in general education, (2) encourage faculty and students to engage in research, (3) continue expanding its role as a servant and leader of the citizens of the state, (4) identify and develop the talents of all students who have the potential for college work, (5) provide a full array of degree programs and services especially tailored to the needs and convenience of college students of all ages, and (6) provide an intelligent atmosphere which stimulates students and faculty to apply knowledge and skills toward the improvement of humanity and the society.

With eight schools and 28 departments, TSU offers degrees ranging from an associates in nursing and allied health to doctorals in education. Many alumni have gone on to become tops in their fields and some have gained national and international status.

Besides the degrees offered, many departments take part in co-operative training programs and internships in which students receive on-the-job training. TSU also offers courses for the full-time worker in the form of Telecourses, Weekend College and Live and Learn courses.

Aside from the vast academic opportunities that are offered by the university, there are more than 80 university co-curricular organizations, departmental clubs, guilds, fraternities, sororities, honor societies, drama and music groups that are open to all students. During the year, numerous plays, lectures, concerts and other cultural events are presented by university groups as well as by a number of noted personalities.

Offering a full range of educational and social/cultural benefits, TSU exemplifies the inscription over the proscenium arch of the Administration Building Auditorium, "Enter to Learn, Go Forth to Serve."

TENNESEE STATE UNIVERSITY

Tested by the Past But Ready to Tackle the Future

by Juanita Buford*

Tennessee State University is celebrating 70 years of education and service to the state and to the nation. The past 70 years is marked with accomplishments as well as problems and while the institution strides forward into the future, the road ahead is embedded with obstacles.

"As we look back, we must remember those who came before us," said Frederick S. Humphries, president of TSU, during recent Founder's Day activities.

"We must remember the hardships and obstacles the university's administrators, faculty and students had to overcome in those early years. Their determination to succeed in spite of problems, criticism and misunderstanding should be remembered and incorporated into our future plans," said TSU's fourth president.

Like most other historically black, land-grant universities, Tennessee State University was established as a result of the Second Morrill Act passed by the U.S. Congress in 1890. The Tennessee General Assembly passed legislation in 1909 which mandated the start of a state school "to prepare colored teachers as leaders."

In 1912, the Agricultural and Industrial State Normal School opened with 13 teachers and 245 students on Zollicoffer Hill in North Nashville. William Jasper Hale was appointed principal that same year.

The Normal School became a college in 1924 and the college received accreditation from the American Association of Teacher's Colleges in 1933.

Hale's salary was placed on a parity with that of presidents of the state's white colleges (from $2,000 a year to $2,700) in 1933. Hale ushered the college through World War I and the "Great Depression" before retiring in 1943.

The next president, Walter S. Davis, took office in 1944 and oversaw the continued growth of the baccalaureate and master's programs and the institution's elevation to university status (1951). He saw Tigerbelle Wilma Rudolph win two gold medals in the 1960 Olympics and the school's name changed to Tennessee State University (1968).

Andrew P. Torrence, TSU's third president, administered the university during the early years of a history-making lawsuit, which was filed in 1968 by a group of citizens and TSU faculty.

The group sought an injunction preventing the University of Tennessee from constructing a new building and continuing operation of its Nashville

*Ms. Buford is coordinator of the University News Services and a former Nashville Banner reporter.

Center. The litigation challenged the legality of Tennessee's segregated higher education

Torrence strongly supported the suit and defended Tennessee State University against detractors who said the university was "inferior" and "dying" because of its predominately black character.

Despite this criticism, Torrence moved the university ahead with the addition of new programs in engineering, home economics and dental hygiene. Torrence resigned in 1974 to assume duties at Tuskegee Institute.

Fred Humphries succeeded Torrence and was at the helm when a final decision in the 11-year lawsuit was handed down in 1979. The courts ordered the Merger of the University of Tennessee at Nashville and Tennessee State University, with TSU assuming control of the merged institution.

Since then, Humphries has worked toward melding the two institutions into one, multiracial, comprehensive, urban university.

The Tennessee State University of today occupies 500 acres, which include 36 major buildings on the main campus in North Nashville, an experimental farm, and the downtown campus at 10th and Charlotte avenues.

The 1981-82 fall enrollment at TSU was 7,730. Approximately 65 percent of the students are black, 30 percent are white and 5 percent are other races. A faculty and staff of 1,345 provides teaching and support services for the students.

TSU has eight schools—Arts and Sciences, Engineering, Business, Agriculture and Home Economics, Nursing, Allied Health Education and the Graduate School. The university grants bachelor's degrees in 43 academic areas, master's degrees in 24 areas and three doctoral degrees in education. More than 25,000 people have graduated from Tennessee State University.

Not only does the institution meet the needs of the traditional college student, it also provides an extensive evening program.

Special programs such as Live and Learn, Weekend College and Learn and Shop, allow older students an opportunity to earn a degree without interfering with employment and family responsibilities.

Faculty and students participate in a variety of research projects in psychology, health, agriculture, sociology and biological sciences.

Dr. Frederick S. Humphries

The projects are supported by more than $15 million in federal and private funds.

TSU's athletic program benefits from the well-known and respected talents of football coach John "Big John" Merritt and women's track coach Ed Temple.

In football, the "Big Blue Tigers" rank among the most outstanding teams in college athletics. Many Tigers have gone on to excell in professional sports. Members of the Tigerbelle Track Team are known the world over for their speed and grace.

"Though we have come a long way, we have much further to go. We have weathered numerous storms, but there are clouds on the horizon," Humphries said.

"Our federal government is cutting back on the amount of money available for educational grants and loans. Our state government is reducing overall funding form higher education in Tennessee, thus creating the need to increase fees for tuition by 15 to 20 percent," said TSU's president.

"In turn, enrollment is declining because without the grants or loans at reasonable interest rates and adequate scholarship funds, a tremendous number of students cannot afford a college education," Humphries continued.

Humphries spoke of a recruitment effort, launched earlier this year, which is designed to accentuate the number of programs available at TSU and the qualifications of the people presenting the programs.

He referred to alumni efforts to raise money for scholarships and the university's endeavors to gain financial support from private philanthropic agencies and businesses.

"All of us—administrators, faculty, students, alumni and friends of the university—must draw upon our intelligence, ingenuity and inner strength to keep our university on its forward path," Humphries said.

"We have to show the world that we are proud of who we are and where we came from. We are the future of this great institution," he added.

"Our light must shine brightly, so that 70 years from now on the 140th Founders Day Observance, our successors will be able to see what we have accomplished. And, they too can be proud."

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR SAMUEL WHITMON

As TSU moves into a new Division 1AA, in the NCAA, Whitmon's is committed to the Big Blue Tigers, Athletic excellence, already firmly established. The newly merged Tennessee State, with its ever increasing enrollment, looks for a brighter tomorrow and a continuing strong athletic program that will constantly have its players etching the name of the Big Blue Tigers on the National scene.

He was Head Baseball Coach at Tennessee State, winning five conference championships and sending three players to the majors, namely George Altman, Chicago Cubs; Fred Valentine, Sam Bowen, both to the Baltimore Orioles; and Allen Robinson, Chicago Cubs.

For sixteen years he was associate professor of biology and a backfield Coach at Tennessee State, serving under Head Coaches Henry Kean, Howard Gentry, Lawrence Simmons, and John Merritt.

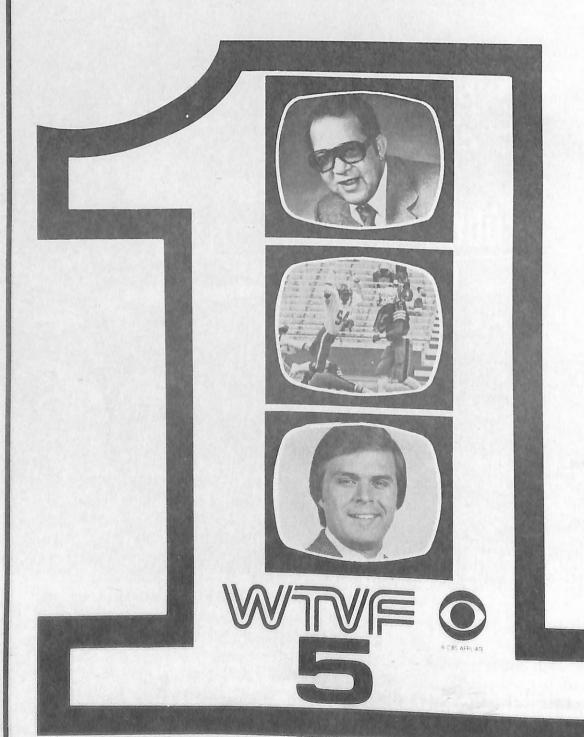

He was coach at Fisk University from 1969 to 1976, also teaching biology as an associate professor. In his seven years at Fisk, he produced two championship teams and four runner-up spots in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, compiling a 44-22-1 record.

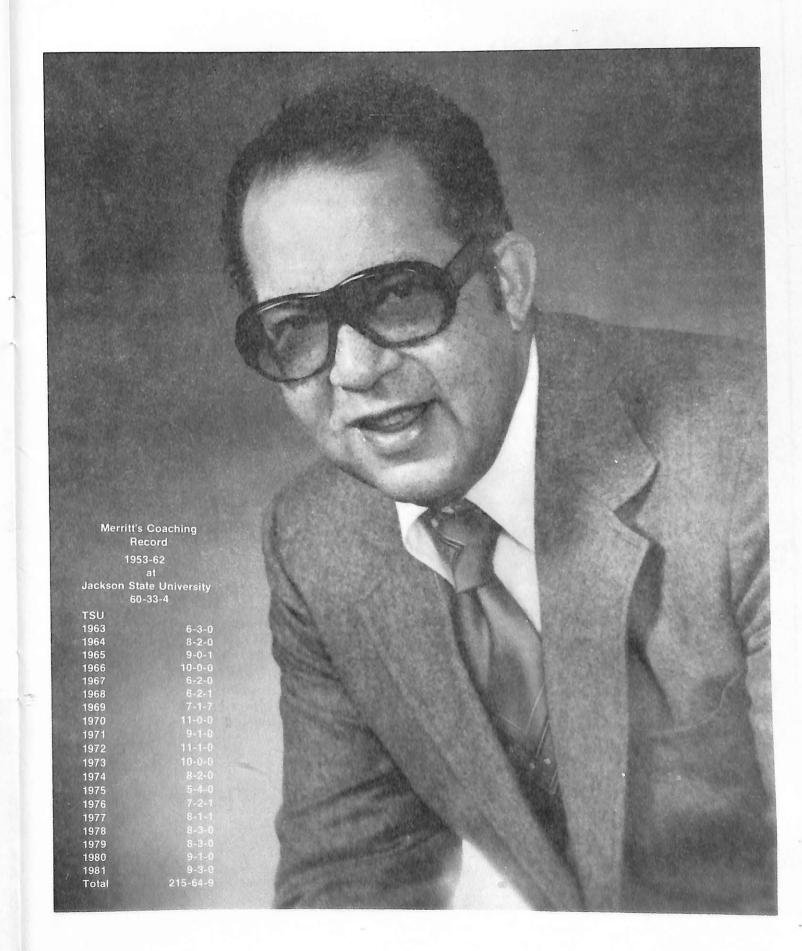

Although athletics remain his primary concern, Whitmon still devotes ample time to fulfilling civic and business projects, including being a member of Nashville's Crime Commission, the City's Beer Board, and Tennessee Hall of Fame.

He is married to the former Dorothy Mallory and is the father of four children: Penny, Patsy, Jennifer, and Michael.

HEAD FOOTBALL COACH JOHN AYERS MERRITT

If one man could exemplify that "Touch of Greatness" that is associated with TSU, that man would be John Merritt.

Merritt was born in 1926 in Falmouth, Kentucky. He attended Falmouth Elementary School and graduated from Central High School in Louisville, Kentucky. He graduated from Kentucky State College in 1950 and received a master of science degree from the University of Cincinnati. Merritt played prep football under Willie Kean, brother of Tennessee State's Henry Arthur "Fox" Kean, at Louisville Central and collegiate football at Kentucky State, five years after Fox Kean left that institution and moved to Tennessee State. As a Thoroughbred guard, Merritt won the Louisville Defender's All-American and All-Midwestern Conference honors for 1949 and played on the Kentucky State team that initiated the little brown jug classic game between the Thoroughbreds and Tigers.

This highly motivated and truly successful coach dominated and helped revolutionize football in the predominately black colleges during the sixties and has continued at the top of the ladder in the seventies and eighties. During his 10-year college coaching stint at Jackson State University in Mississippi, Coach Merritt won the 1962 Coach of the Year honor while compiling a 60-33-4 record and having only one losing season. Merritt continued his winning philosophy at TSU when he left Jackson State in 1963 to take over the Tigers' head coach job.

"Big John," as he is affectionately known to his many friends and fans, is a man who loves challenges and hard work. He has shown an ability to bring a football team to maturity by making it realize its potential. As a result, he has been named Coach-of-the-Year more than half-dozen times, while his teams have won National championship honors among predominantly black colleges a like number of times. In 1979 his team won the National Black College Championship after edging out his rival coaching counterpart, Eddie Robinson at Grambling. Last season the Tigers finished with a 9-3 record.

Since he came to Tennessee State in 1963, Merritt hasn't had a losing season. Under Merritt and his able staff of Joe Gilliam, Sr. and Alvin "Cat" Coleman and others. TSU has amassed four undefeated seasons and six National championships and a record of 155 wins, loses and 5 ties for a winning percentage of 83.3 and a life time winning percentage of 76.02.

Coach Merritts record of 215-64-9 makes him the third most winning coach just behind Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant Alabama and Coach Eddie Robinson of Grambling. Coach Merritt has had several players to go to the pros and become big names in professional football.

Last year, Merritt had a lengthy fight with chronic high blood pressure and heart failure. Many believed his ailing health would end the career of this great man. But, being the fighting "Tiger" that he is, Coach Merritt has struggled to overcome his illness and resume his career.

Among the recent honors bestowed upon the coach are the Sheridan Broadcasting Network's Paul Robeson Award, which is presented annually to individuals who have contributed significantly to black colleges in the areas of athletics and academics; and the renaming of Centennial Boulevard (the main thouroghfare on TSU's campus) to John Ayers Merritt Boulevard.

Big John is married to the former Maxine Owens, who is the women's Head Basketball Coach at TSU. They have a daughter, Mrs. Bonita Traughber of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and two grandsons Merritt and Traughber.

TSU FOOTBALL OUTLOOK

by Kindell Stephens

While Head coach Big John Merritt was embattled with heart and blood pressure problems, assistant coach Joe Gilliam, Sr. and staff carried out the big fellows orders to near perfection rolling up a 9-3 record. These nine wins gives Merritt a 29-year winning total of 215 wins 64 losses and 9 ties. The Tennessee State legislature just passed a bill renaming Centennial Blvd. to JOHN A. MERRITT BLVD in honor of the famous coach. Last season the tigers fell short in their quest for a National Championship, as the lost to South Carolina State 26-25, in the first ever NCAA sudden death playoff overtime game.

The tigers will return 42 lettermen, which includes 18 seniors. Leading the way will be recording setting QB Brian Ransom, who broke records in most yards, attempts, and completions in a season set by the legandary Joe "747" Adams, just a year ago. Ransom was selected the Sheridan All-American and Offensive Player of the Year, and ABC Player of the Week on the regional televised game against UT-Chattanooga where he passed for over 300 yards. He was also selected into the Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society with a 3.56 average in Business. He made AP All-American this past season. He had the most passes completed in a single game, with 36 in the UT-Chattanooga game. Ransom is currently the fourth all-time career leader in yards at TSU. For the record setting season he completed 221 of 374 for 3182 vards and threw 22 TDs, as he averaged 265 yards a game to rank second in the NCAA Statistics. The tigers will return one of the best trio of receivers in the nation: All-American Wide out Mike Jones (49 catches-872 yards 6 TDs) Wide out Golden Tate (46 catches-716 yards, 6 TDs) and Tight end Kenneth Gardner (40 catches 641 yards and 4 TDs) With all that passing which ranked 3rd in the nation the tigers balanced off their offensive attack with some timely running on the ground to chun out over 1700 yards. TSU ranked 4th in the nation in total offense with 421.5 yards a game and also ranked 6th in scoring with 29.0 points a outing. Returning in the backfield will be massive Larry "Tank" Kinnebrew (6-1, 255 lb.) who managed 500 vards and scored 8 Tds. Other Returnees capable of starting are Steve Turner (195). Rodney Pope (200) plus look out for these three speedsters Marlon Johnson (180), converted Defensive back Mickeky Avery (185) and elusive Herman Hunter (175) who also handles the punt and kickoff returns. In the Offensive line, tabbed "Brian Heros" the tigers lost massive Donald Laster, Curtis Mitchell, Wiley Doughty. That line allowed Ransom to only be sacked nine times. Anchoring the line this season will be All-American Candidate Steve Moore (6-5, 270) at Tackle along with Mark Sims (6-3, 239) at the guards will be Russell Phillips (6-2, 243) and Lindenberg Green (6-3, 249) and at the center will be steady Walter Tate (6-3, 247). This line will be pushed by a host of talent: Darryll Caldwell, George Clay, Lorenzo Glover, Tim Jordan, and Roderick Adams.

Defensively, TSU returns All-American Candidate Richard "Dirty" Dent (6-5, 240) at tackle. Dent has been the tigers leading QB sacker for the last two season and he will be counted on to replace the talent and leadership of departed Malcolm Taylor, who is in the NFL. Other inside linesmen will be standout Tommy Perkins (6-6, 270), Dwayne Roberts (6-1, 240), Willie Horton (6-0, 225) and Wilbur Smith (6-0, 245) will be at nose guard. TSU also has the admired linebacking pair of Primes Bobo (6-0, 215) and Vynell Henderson (6-1, 219). Henderson led the tigers with 75 solo tackles last season, and Bobo was second with 56. They will again be counted on to be the core of the aggressive stingy defense of T-State. It will be hard for T-State to hold back the new lead by James Derico, Anthony Crooks, Mike Robinson all fighting to move into the starting unit. Also backup linesmen Willie C. McCurty, Connis Hill. John Johnson and Robert Boyd, all have plans on moving up to the starting unit. In the secondary the tigers will have some experience in Gary Davis, Donnie Allen, Nate Jones, Thomas Headen, Arthur Revere, Clyde Ward and Roger Robinson, and capable backup will come from Joe Fleming, Ronald Howard and David

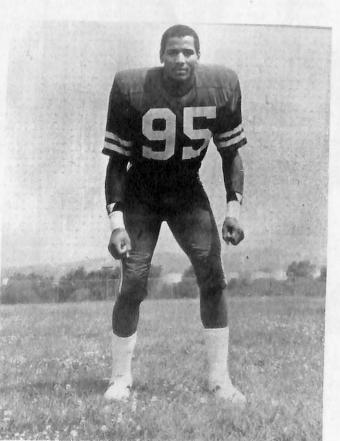

One objective this season for the defense will be to keep down the number of penalties. Last season the defense was penalized 162 times, for well over 1500 yards. "That is far too many penalties for us to be effective, and we will cut that figure down" cites Bill Thomas the defensive coach. He continued, "If we can accomplish that and still keep our aggressiveness especially within our 30-yard line, we'll be much improved. Last year the tiger defense was ranked in rushing defense allowing just 89.9 yards a contest.

The tigers will have to find a new kicker. Larry Watkins the third leading career scorer in TSU history is gone and the job is up to Carlos Jones and or Jao Makor from Nigaria.

DO-IT-YOURSELF STATISTICS

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page, can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorers whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

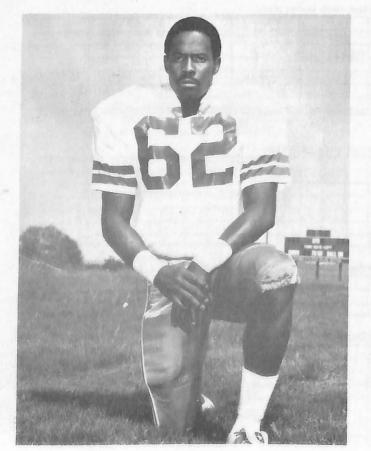

- 1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify your figuring of team totals. Example: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3 9 18 20 on his line.
- 2. Be satisfied if you come within 10-15 yards of the official team totals. Individual judgments as to the line of scrimmage can make quite a difference in the totals.
- 3. Remember that it takes 10 yards to make a first down—that lest inch can be as important as a yard and must be scored as one. Wait until the official places the ball and then go by the official down/yard marker on the sidelines.
- 4. Be sure to credit first downs on scoring plays originating from lines of scrimmage beyond the 10-yard line.
- 5. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.
- Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgment, contributed most to the error.
- 7. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touch-downs as rushing or passing plays.

Even the sound of the door closing is by design.

Our doors speak well of the rest of our car. But their tight, solid sound is no accident.

Before we begin building the car, we engineer the best way to assemble it. Piece by piece.

Doors, trunk and hood fit the body with close tolerances all around. We align hinges and latches to work freely.

Window glass is held snug. And runs in the window channels smoothly. Triple rubber door seals help reduce outside sounds and wind noise. We've improved the insulation throughout the car.

The Honda Accord 4-Door Sedan is not only quieter, it's also roomier and more comfortable. You'll find it rides and handles better.

And while its many luxurious features are impressive, they are standard equipment. Like cruise control and variable-assist power steering, to name but two.

Honda's simple philosophy of building cars that work the way they were designed to work has made Honda number one in owner loyalty among all leading import cars*

It has helped Honda cars retain a high resale value, among the best in the automotive industry.

You can fully appreciate how a Honda is made the next time you're in a Honda showroom.

After you kick the tires, listen to the doors.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL 1982 PRESS KIT

SHORT TAKES

Some Saturday in this 114th year of college football, Grambling's Eddie Robinson will become only the fourth college coach to win 300 games. He needs only three victories, so No. 300 could come September 25 at Florida A&M. It may take a little longer, because Robinson is going with two untested quarterbacks and coming off a 6-4-1 season (most losses since 1969). Unless you've been living in a cave, you know Alabama's Paul Bryant leads the all-time list at 315. Only 13 coaches in college history have won 200 or more games at four-year colleges and four are active--Bryant, Robinson, Tennessee State's John Merritt and John Gagliardi of Division III St. John's (Minn.). Here's the entire list:

And in case you're wondering, Bryant will be 69 on September 11, Robinson was 63 on February 13, Merritt was 55 on January 26 and Gagliardi will be 56 on November 1.

Miss Tennessee State University

Beauty, brains, charm and grace are just a few of the superlatives used to describe Sabrina Anne Goodwin, Miss Tennessee State University for the academic year 1982-83. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Goodwin of Tulsa, Oklahoma. She is a member of the TSU Honors Program, T.E. Poag Players Guild, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Who's Who Among Outstanding American Colleges and Universities. She served as Representative-at-Large for the SGA 1981-82 and Miss Sophomore 1980-81. She has also been involved with Outstanding Community Leaders of America and has been on the Dean's List for the past three years.

She stated, "I know it will require diligent work and great effort in holding my title and I am willing and ready to work for the betterment of our institution, and I hope students are ready to work along with the SGA." She is very capable and qualified to wear the crown of Miss TSU.

Student Government Association President

Georgette "Gigi" Peek not only claims a place in Tennessee State University's history as the Student Government Association (SGA) president for 1982-83, she also has the distinction of being the first woman to hold the post.

Elected on the basis of her commitment to TSU and its goals, her down-to-earth personality and her willingness to work hard for the good of her fellow students, Ms. Peek has begun her administration with a promise of "Pulling Together for Progress."

The Greenville, S.C., native is the daughter of George and Nancy Peek. She is majoring in Spech Communication and Theatre with an emphasis in broadcast journalism. In addition to maintaining an academic average allowing her to be on the Dean's List for three years, Ms. Peek also holds memberships on the Student-Faculty Advisory Committee, the T.E. Poag Players Guild, the Student Union Board of Governors, Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society and Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc.

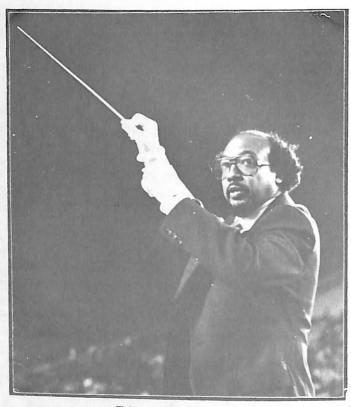

The Aristocrat of Bands

Noted as one of the finest and most spectacular university bands in the country, Tennessee State University's Aristocrat of Bands is the featured attraction during pre-game and half-time performances at all home games. In addition, the band plans to accompany the Tigers on at least four road trips this year, said Edward L. Graves, director of the band.

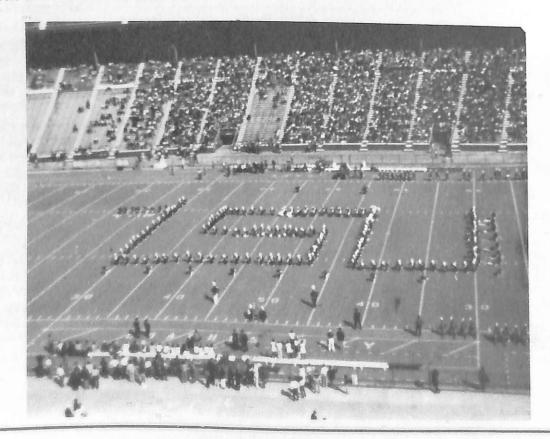

This year's band promises to be one of the largest, sharpest and most disciplined in the university's history. With approximately 110 returning members, the band continues to march with its characteristic precision and distinctly soulful style. A troupe of vivacious majorettes, under the direction of Jacqueline Jefferson, enhance the dynamic style and sound of the band.

Graves, a 1962 TSU graduate from Forest, Mississippi, holds a master's degree in music education from the University of Illinois. Before returning to TSU, he served as band director at Tuskegee Institute, North Carolina A & T University, and Shaw University. He was also head of the music department at Shaw.

Band assistants are Benjamin Kirk, Thomas, Leonard Giles, Leonard Morton. There are also three graduate assistants, Levert Woodard, Freddie Holt and Lorenzo Hansworth.

TSU's Swaziland Connection

When Swaziland's King Sobhuza died August 22, TSU lost a friend and Africa may have lost one of its few stable governments with good U.S. relations

Swaziland is one of Africa's more prosperous countries and lies at the opposite end of Africa from the Subsahara. It's nearly surrounded by White-ruled South Africa, although it also shares a border with leftist Mozambique, which blocks Swaziland's access to the ocean. In area, it's the size of Hawaii; in population, it's the size of Nashville. Until 1972, it was ruled by Great Britain.

King Sobhuza ruled there for more than 60 years, and his rule brought stability. He left no clear successor and turmoil among several of his more than 600 children could follow his death.

Recently the Swaziland government and the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) awarded Pennsylvania State University an $11 million contract to help the Swazis develop better cropping systems. TSU is a subcontractor on this five-year international development project, which is currently employing the services of TSU sociologist Dr. Verlene Watson. Watson is in Swaziland serving as the Project Sociologist in an effort to establish baseline sociological data for the project. She will soon be joined by TSU Library Director Dr. Evelyn Fancher. Additional TSU faculty are expected to become involved in Swaziland.

TSU's international presence has grown dramatically in the last few years—with the establishment on campus of the African Affairs institute, with the receipt of federal grant to prepare faculty and students to serve abroad, and with faculty involvement in international development in Swaziland and elsewhere.

But much of this international involvement began in Swaziland in 1975, when Dr. Handy Williamson, Jr., Director of the Cooperative Agricultural Research Program (CARP) at TSU, joined an international development team asked to conduct a human resource development study. That study led to manpower training recommendations that were subsequently adopted by the Swazis adopted by the Swazis.

Two years later Williamson returned to Swaziland as Team Leader for a USAID project to assess supply and demand of trained agricultural manpower. During this visit, Williamson was summoned to an audience with the King, an honor not bestowed on his white colleagues there. Sobhuza expressed his gratitude to Williamson for his previous visit and for his return, and said Swaziland looked forward to with other Black Americans in the development of his country.

Williamson has served on several four-to-ten week assignments in the Sudan, Angola, the Ivory Coast, Togo, Ghana, Botswana, Lesotho, Liberia, Nigeria, South Africa, Zimbabwe, Kenya, and Ethopia, as well as Swaziland. In addition to the African assignments, he's worked in the Philippines and in Jamaica.

So when Penn State sought to subcontractor for its current project in Swaziland, TSU was a logical selection. Williamson, however, is concerned that with the death of the king, instability could result in Swaziland and the U.S.

could be doomed to a diminished presence there.

"The situation in Swaziland will probably remain uncertain for several months and we can only hope that a stable and friendly regime emerges. I have many friends in Swaziland.

emerges. I have many friends in Swaziland.
Swaziland's economy is a mixed blessing. Most of the country's large farms are owned by Europeans, and these farms provide employment, a solid tax base, and national wealth. However, as in many of the less developed countries, the large cash crops are grown for the export market. Swaziland exports sugar, woodpulp, and beef, but must import maize to feed its people.

Swaziland hopes to become self-sufficient in its swaziland nopes to become self-sufficient in its production of maize. Subsistence farmers typically farm plots of about 60 acres, which nets them much less income than is earned by city worker. So the Swazis are trying to develop and teach better production methods to help keep the small farmer on the farm and to increase national production of maize.

The Swazis hope to raise the average farm income nearly eight-fold. A key to this goal is irrigation to permit double and triple cropping. Another key is cropping system research to provide basic cost/benefit data. Also needed is an improved communications system between government and university researcher and the small farmers.

Thus, the current cropping-patterns project that Penn State and TSU have undetaken there. While Dr. Watson helps assemble baseline data, Dr. Fancher will help develop a research base by advising the Swazi's on the establishment of a library to serve the researchers there. Other TSU personnel interested in serving in Swaziland were interviewed at TSU recently by project team leaders from Penn State and by officials of the Swaziland government.

Williamson returned to Swaziland last summer as a member of a U.S. AID team working to strengthen the extension program there. He is currently serving as senior consultant to the Jamaican Agricultural Planning Project, and is chairman of a Joint Research subcommittee on agricultural needs in the Subsahara, a vast area in northern Africa consisting of little arable land and many hungry people.

In the wake of the Swaziland experience of Williamson and others, TSU is expanding its capacity for international development work with the aid of a half-million dollar "strengthening grant" to make more TSU personnel trained and able to serve on international projects. Dr. Troy Wakefield, a CARP researcher and a human nutritionist in the Department of Home Economics, is administering this grant.

Dr. Roland Norman, Dean of the School of Agriculture and Home Economics, is a university trustee on the Southeastern Consortium for International Development (SECID); and Dr. Kenneth Hillsman, Chairman of the Department of Plant Science and a researcher for CARP, corruse on a SECID committee.

serves on a SECID committee.

Two other former CARP researchers, Professor of Plant Science Dr. Neal McAlpin and Assistant Professor of Animal Science Dr. Neville Russell, are working in Keny's primary agricultural training center, Egerton College on a U.S. AID project.

JONES, RANSOM, ARNOLD GET EARLY ALL-AMERICA STATUS

BY RANDY WEILER Banner Sports Writer

Vanderbilt punter Jim Arnold and Tennessee State University quarterback Brian Ransom and wide receiver Mike Jones have been named to preseason All-America teams by The Sporting News.

The three are listed in the first The Sporting News 1982 College Football Yearbook, which will hit the news stands sometime after Aug. 1, according to John Hadley, special assistant for the magazine.

Arnold, who averaged 43.5 yards per punt (his longest was 79 yards vs. Tulane in the Superdome) for the Commodores in 1981, is named to the 68-man NCAA Division I-A checklist. He and Tennessee sophomore Jimmy Colquitt are among six punter/place-kickers chosen.

Arnold, from Dalton, Ga., has a 43.2 yard career average — tops in the country for a veteran player. He averaged 41.9 as a freshman, 44.2 as a sophomore: Knoxvillian Colquitt boomed 58 kicks for a 43.8 yard average (his longest was 62) and did not have any blocked.

Ransom, who passed for more than 3,100 yards as a junior, and Jones, who caught 49 passes a year ago, are chosen to the 48-man I-AA All-America checklist. Ransom is among six field generals chosen on the preseason list; Jones is among eight wide receivers.

Hadley said Jones and Grambling University's Trumaine Johnson "rated as the top two receivers in the country from information we've received from pro scouts and the news media." He said the scouts list them ahead of Michigan's Anthony Carter and Pittsburgh's Julius Dawkins.

Jones, 6-0, 182-pound senior from Chattanooga, caught 49 passes for 872 yards (17.7 yards per catch) and six touchdowns in 1981. Ransom completed 221 of 374 passes for 3,182 yards (265 yards per game) and 22 scores in a record-setting season.

Massive defensive lineman Richard "Dirty" Dent (6-5, 245) was a consideration but not picked on the checklist, Hadley said, adding, "Pro scouts indicate he'll be a high round draft choice."

The Sporting News' representative, speaking by telephone from St. Louis, said the 176-page magazine indictes "Tennessee State will be a strong contender for the I-AA national championship."

The data on the Big Blue includes specifics about Coach John Merritt, the Tigers' excellent passing game, the running threat of 6-2, 240-pound Larry Kinnebrew and a "loaded" defensive line, Hadley, said.

In addition to Arnold and Colquitt, the Southeastern Conference players on the I-AA team are:

Running back Herschel Walker and defensive lineman Jimmy Payne, Georgia, defensive backs Jeremiah Castille and Tommy Wilcox and defensive lineman Mike Pitts, Alabama; defensive lineman Donnie Humphrey, Auburn; and defensive lineman Billy Jackson, Mississippi State.

The I-AA squad also includes tight end Tron Armstrong, Eastern Kentucky, running back Paris Wicks, Youngstown State; defensive back Billy Blaylock, Tennessee Tech; linebacker Paul Gray, Western Kentucky; defensive lineman Willie Little, UT-Chattanooga; and defensive back Donnie Cook, East Tennessee State.

The publication's preseason Top 20 in I-A finds Alabama pegged for second, Georgia sixth and Florida 16. Pitt gets the nod as the preseason No. 1 team. It did not pick a Top 20 in I-AA because of large purge of schools from I-A to I-AA and a general lack of information, Hadley said.

NCAA: Serving Higher Education

Now in its 77th year of service, the National Collegiate Athletic Association continues to meet the demands of its member institutions. While serving the nation's colleges and universities, the NCAA is the voice of intercollegiate

A call for stricter control of college football by President Theodore Roosevelt because of the violence in the game brought together 13 institutions in 1905, formulating the original communications base for college athletics.

This initial body called itself the Intercollegiate Athletic Association and was officially constituted March 31, 1906. In 1910, the name was changed to the National Collegiate Athletic Associ-

More than seven progressive decades have molded this original 13-member body into a membership today of more than 900 colleges, universities, conferences and affiliated organizations.

Administration and rules interpretation occupied early efforts of the organization. Shortly after World War II, the NCAA adopted legislative and executive powers, changing its function into one dealing with virtually all issues concerned with intercollegiate athletics.

Many things have become associated with the NCAA during its colorful history. Highest priority goes to the service it provides to its members, acting as the true "voice" of college athletics today.

Each January the NCAA membership comes together at the annual Convention to review, propose and amend legislation. The Convention presents the opportunity for the nation's institutions of higher learning to speak and act on athletic matters on the national level.

Acting in the best interests of its membership, the NCAA strives to perform these specific functions among its many other responsibilities:

• Conducts 42 annual National Collegiate Championships in 19 men's sports for three separate divisions. Three championships (Division I, Division II and Division III) are held in baseball, basketball, cross country, golf, soccer, swimming, tennis, outdoor track and wrestling. Two championships are staged in gymnastics, lacrosse and ice hockey. Fencing, rifle, skiing, indoor track, volleyball and water polo hold single National Collegiate Championships, while football is contested in Divisions I-AA, II and III. The NCAA is conducting 31 women's championships in the 1982-83 academic year in addition to the 42 held for men. Women's championships will be held in all three divisions in basketball, cross country, field hockey, softball, swimming, tennis, outdoor track and volleyball. Two championships (Division I and Division II) will be staged in gymnastics, while fencing, golf, lacrosse, soccer and indoor track will hold single National Collegiate Championships. The National Collegiate Championship dates back to 1883 in tennis; and during this 100-year history, more than 13,000 student-athletes have earned the coveted title of "National Collegiate Champion.'

- · Maintains 23 men's sports committees, including 14 men's rules committees to formulate, copyright and publish rules of play for the government of collegiate sports. Members of these and many other committees, including 16 women's sports/rules committees, are elected by representatives of member institutions at the annual Convention.
- Publishes a tabloid newspaper 46 times per year, rules books in 12 sports, record books in football and basketball and various other publications.
- · Collects, compiles and distributes the official statistics of college football, basketball and baseball in men's sports. and basketball and softball in women's
- · Conducts studies as a means of developing solutions to athletic problems.
- Represents the membership in legislative and regulatory matters on the state and Federal levels.
- Annually selects the College Athletics Top Ten and the Theodore Roosevelt ("Teddy") Award-the Association's highest honor.
- Administers an honors program which annually awards 90 postgraduate scholarships to recognize outstanding senior student-athletes who have excelled in the classroom as well as athletics. This scholarship is for $2,000. The program has provided $1,784,000 to 1,354 recipients since its inception in the 1964-65 academic year.

Division I-AA features new teams

Division I-AA will have a new look this season with the addition of 43 teams and five conferences from Division I-A. With these changes, made at the NCAA's special Convention last December, there are 93 teams in Division I-AA this season.

The new Division I-AA conferences are the Southern, Southland, Missouri Valley, Ivy and Mid-American, although the Missouri Valley and Mid-American still have a few teams classified in Division I-A.

The remaining Division I-AA conferences are the Big Sky, Mid-Eastern, Ohio Valley, Southwestern and Yankee. The remainder of Division I-AA includes 21 independents.

The final three I-AA classifications occurred in the August 18-20 meeting of the NCAA Council when appeals by the University of Cincinnati, Miami University (Ohio) and Western Michigan University to remain in Division I-A were denied.

Following is an updated list of teams in Division I-AA:

Southern Conference: Appalachian State University; The Citadel; East Tennessee State University; Furman University; Marshall University; University of Tennessee, Chattanooga; Virginia Military Institute, and Western Carolina University.

Southland Conference: Arkansas State University; Lamar University; Louisiana Tech University; McNeese State University; North Texas State University; Northeast Louisiana University, and University of Texas, Arlington.

Missouri Valley Conference: Drake University; Illinois State University; Indiana State University; Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, and West Texas State University. (NOTE: New Mexico State University, University of Tulsa and Wichita State University still are members of Division I-A.)

Ivy League: Brown University, Columbia University, Cornell University, Dartmouth College, Harvard University, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton University and Yale University.

Mid-American Conference: Ball State University, Bowling Green State University, Eastern Michigan University, Kent State University, Miami University, Northern Illinois University, Ohio University and Western Michigan University. (NOTE: Central Michigan University and University of Toledo are Division I-A members.)

Big Sky Conference: Boise State University; University of Idaho; Idaho State University; University of Montana; Montana State University; University of Nevada, Reno; Northern Arizona University, and Weber State College.

Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference: Bethune-Cookman College, Delaware State College, Florida A&M University, Howard University, North Carolina A&T State University and South Carolina State College.

Ohio Valley Conference: University of Akron, Austin Peay State University, Eastern Kentucky University, Middle Tennessee State University, Morehead State University, Murray State University, Tennessee Technological University and Youngstown State University.

Southwestern Athletic Conference: Alabama State University; Alcorn State University; Grambling State University; Jackson State University; Mississippi Valley State University; Prairie View A&M University; Southern University, Baton Rouge, and Texas Southern University.

CAMARO

Z 28. SO NEW, ITS CLOSEST COMPETITION IS ITS SHADOW.

CAST A SHADOW ULTRASLEEK.

Consider: Even with downforceinducing air dam and spoiler, the Z28 gets a .339 coefficient of drag.

A totally redesigned suspension, front and rear, has enabled the Z28 to generate .8g-range cornering power on GM skidpads.

The ergonomically engineered cockpit looks and functions like an executive jet.

The all-new Camaro Z28. It's a unique 2+2 coupe with an unfettered spirit, an uncommon style and an unusual capacity for enhancing all but the most conservative of life-styles.

Some Chevrolets are equipped with engines produced by other GM divisions, subsidiaries, or affiliated companies worldwide. See your dealer for details.

Chevrolet

Enter with a blur-the new Z28.

This is an all-new Camaro. Styled to leave some fine 2+2 coupes chasing shadows. With lines cleanly sculpted in a wind tunnel and enough unabashedly advanced engineering to satiate even the most demanding technophile.
